Sisters doing it for themselves

Who Needs Prince Charming – powerful, inspiring, honest, delicious and motivating?

SOPHIE MONTGOMERY

AMANDA Cole discovered she was a writer after a dream she had on a plane that led her to write her first book – I hate Cinderella.

The fire was well and truly lit, with the Coogee author releasing her second book You are my Future, last year and now her third offering comes in the form of a collaboration of inspiring tips on love and life: Who Needs Prince Charming?

Cole interviewed 35 accomplished Australian women, including a Kiwi sports star and a Swedish love coach, outlining their journeys through love and success.

Other contributors include Cath Cox, Camilla Franks.

Samantha Brett, Dr Cindy Pan, Jacinta Tynan, Kathryn Eisman, Tania Zaetta, Maude Garrett and Lyndsey Rodrigues.

“Once I finished writing I hate Cinderella I crossed paths with so many talented women who were achieving some amazing feats in their own fields,” Cole said.

“I wanted to gather up all the accumulated knowledge of as many of these women to create a resource to help inspire others to find their path and exceed in it.

Cole is donating a percentage of sales to SISTER2Sister, which supports teenage girls in the form of mentorship for those who are disadvantaged, disengaged and at risk of abuse or neglect.
